Project Title: The Masters Tournament

1. Project Overview

The goal of my website is to provide info about the Masters to both golf fans and non fans alike. The aesthetic is so unique to the tournament, so I want that displayed throughout the website.

2. Resources

The Masters wikipedia page has a lot of good info about the tournament, https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Masters_Tournament, as does the Masters website itself, <https://www.masters.com/index.html>.

3. Audience

The purpose of creating this website is strictly informational. I would assume that it would mostly be viewed by fans of the sport, so it is important to appeal to them by including proper golf terms.

4. Message

I'd like to convey the deep history of the tournament. Additionally, the tradition rooted so deep helps make this one of the most unique events in all of sports, so I'd like to convey how special this tournament is and what makes it stand out.

5. Tone

Historic is a perfect way to describe the tone. Additionally, golf is considered a very "classy" sport, so I'd like that to be conveyed through the tone without giving a stuck up vibe, if that makes any sense. Classy and put together without looking too stark.

6. Visual Style

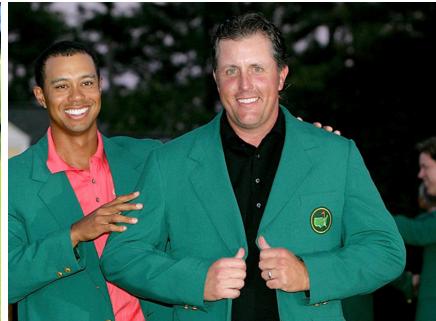

Green, yellow and white are the historic colors of the tournament. There are also many historic and beautiful images on the internet that perfectly convey the vibes of the event that I believe would look nice on the microsite below. I listed some imagery below.

The Logo

Caddie outfits, a tradition

Green jackets, another tradition

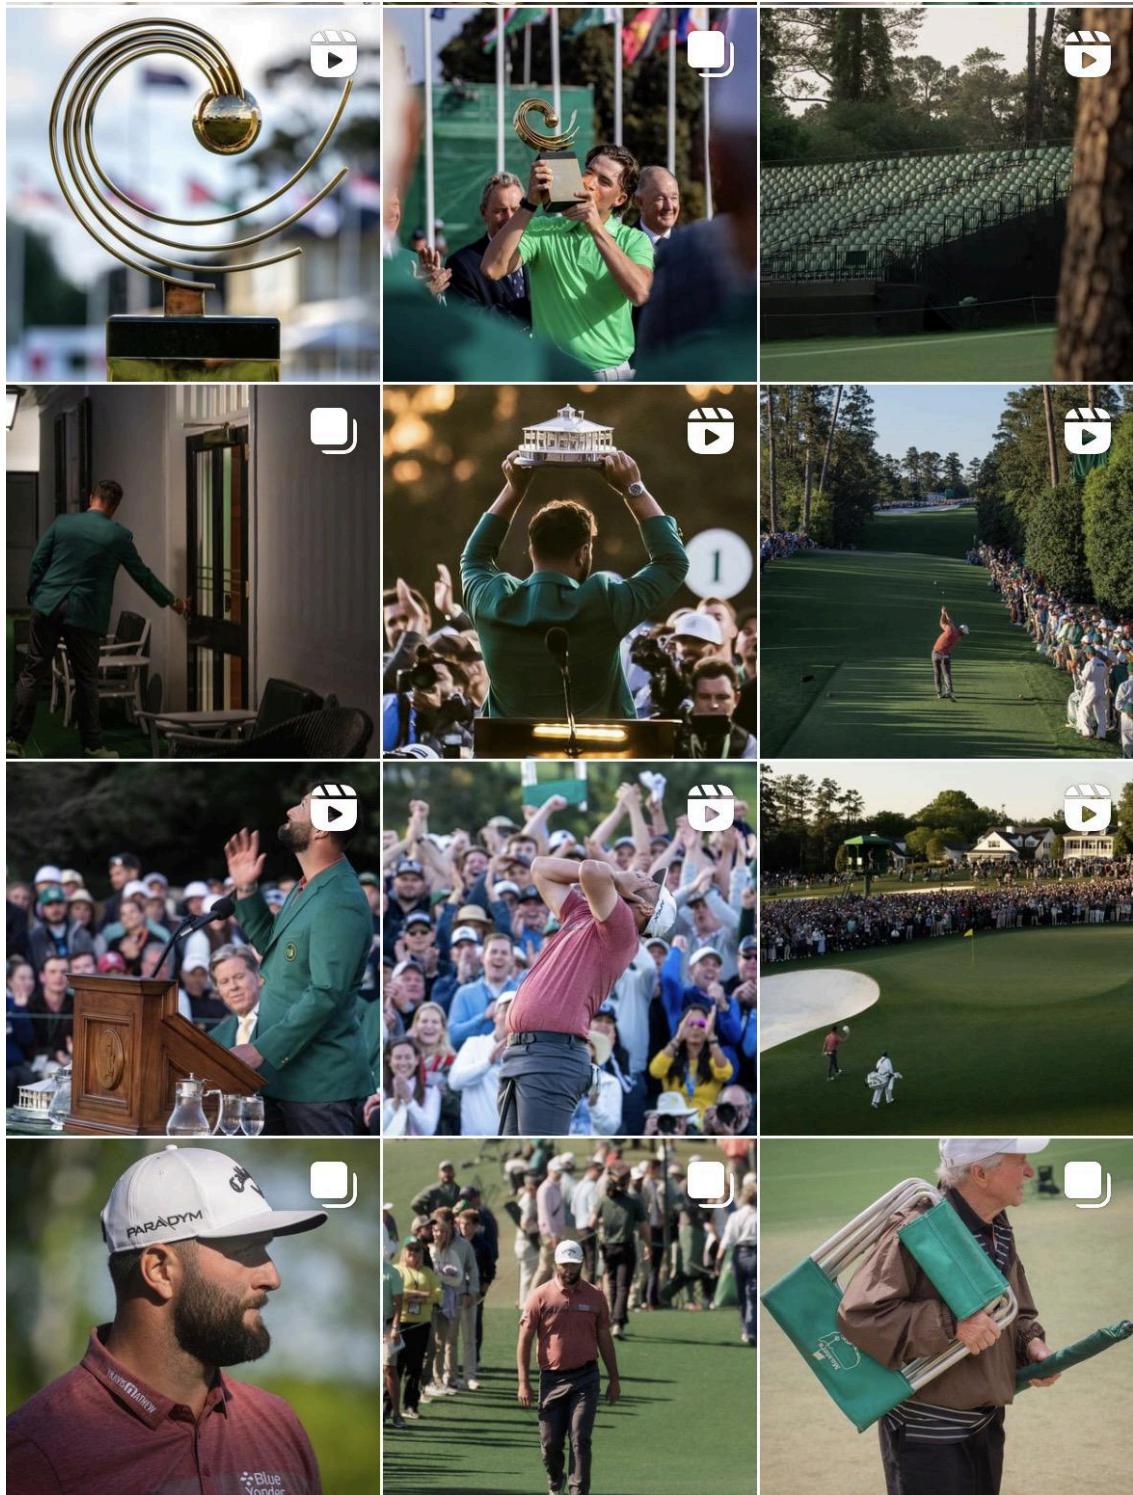

A screenshot of the Masters Tournament website. The top half of the page features a large, high-quality photograph of a golfer in the middle of a golf swing. The golfer is wearing a striped polo shirt and dark trousers. Below this image, there is a dark green banner with white text. The text includes a call to action to stay updated on news and a "Sign Up For The Masters Newsletter" button, which contains the text "Sign Up".

From the Masters website, I like this design. Sleek with an emphasis on the sport.

A screengrab from the Masters instagram. You can see how rich in tradition the event is through this which I love.
